To free his father and himself from his mother's tyranny, Pierre Rivière decided to kill her. On June 3, 1835, he went inside his small Normandy house with a pruning hook and cut to death his mother, his eighteen-year-old sister, and his seven-year-old brother. Then, in jail, he wrote a memoir to justify the whole gruesome tale.

In 1835, a French peasant Pierre Marie Rivière, PMR, in a seem-ingly incomprehensible act of cruelty killed his immediate fam-ily. Some contemporaries, including Esquirol, saw in PMR the traces of radical irrationality (psychosis) while others ascribed his deeds to an evil personality. Thus a basic disagreement on the nature of rationality and mad-

~~I, Pierre Rivière, having slaughtered my mother, my sister ...~~

At the center of I, Pierre Rivière is the testimony that Rivière composed in his own hand, in which his motivation for killing his mother and siblings had nothing to do with God, which he admits was just a ploy, and more to do with freeing his father from what he regarded as a life of endless torment at the hands of his mother. The siblings, in turn, were killed because they sided with a woman that Rivière thought of as wholly loathsome.
