What is a winning strategy? Why do some people, families, and organizations take a dive, some merely survive, while others thrive? What leads up to a disaster or collapse? Why do some squander success, while others continue to elevate? How do we build a solid foundation that assures solid, authentic growth? Me We Do Be is the result of research that has spanned twenty-five years at the intersection of sociology and economics. Specifically, I have explored what behaviors lead to disaster, recovery, or prosperity. As an economist, I measure the financial effects caused by disasters and other detrimental conditions. In other words, when disaster strikes, I am often called in to compute the business and real estate damages. Appraisers measure value, but I measure the loss of value. Moreover, also being a sociologist, I keep my eye on the people behind the statistics as I develop the strategies to move forward. It is a narrow consulting niche involving research, valuation, negotiation, and strategy, and it has provided unique access to interesting people and places around the globe. The journey began in the 1980s when I was a graduate student at UCLA studying leadership and business models. In the 1990s, I directed a national practice at the world's largest consulting firm. My research expanded as I walked the reactors at Chernobyl and cut through the jungles around the Bikini Atoll radioactive nuclear test sites. I have worked on cases ranging from the O. J. Simpson and JonBenet Ramsey crime scenes to the bizarre Heaven's Gate Cult mass-suicide mansion. In the 2000s, there was more. I was stunned as I stood on a curb in New York and watched smoke billowing from the World Trade Center and picked up debris on a rural field in Pennsylvania where Flight 93 had crashed on 9-11. I walked the beaches stained by the BP Oil Spill and inspected thousands of homes torn apart by Hurricane Katrina. As a socio-economist I have worked on these and hundreds of other cases around the world. More importantly, I have studied their ultimate resolution. While some reporters drop in and rush off to the next story, I have stayed to talk to the people long after the news vans drive away. Furthermore, I have been an adviser in countless boardrooms where we discussed cases involving billions of dollars. A crisis exposes a person's or organization's true character, and this yields some invaluable insights. In all, I had accumulated a mountain of information and I wanted to organize it within a practical framework. My objective was to find a model that children could understand and that a CEO would take seriously. I considered using the ancient Greek paradigm of "ethos, pathos, and logos" and a more modern framework of "mental, social, spiritual, and physical." Of course, there was the standard, "mind, body, and soul," as well as many other models. All of these struck me as good, but none of them struck me as complete. It was as if they were playing some of the keys of the piano, but not the whole keyboard. I simply wanted a clear, complete framework. My quest for the ideal model ultimately came to me on the Marianas Islands as I sat in deep thought for three consecutive days. The answer was simple: Just as all great structures have four cornerstones, there are four cornerstones of all great pursuits. These can be summed up as Me We Do Be. Me refers to habits that build quality thinking and wisdom, We habits build relationships, Do habits build productivity, and Be habits build the future. In the pages that follow, I will use this Me We Do Be framework as we explore some of the most fascinating places on Earth, learn from the experiences of some extraordinary people, and look at classic behavioral research. This is all set out within the four Me We Do Be sections, twenty-one short chapters, and about one hundred individual lessons. The objective of each lesson is to encourage discussion on essential life skills. On top of that, more than five thousand people from all fifty states, Australia, and the United Kingdom participated in our Rich Habits Survey.¹ Here, my research staff and I surveyed professionals, students, stay-at-home moms, retirees, the unemployed, and multi-millionaires. We studied dozens of rituals ranging from writing thank-you notes to eating together as a family. We then statistically correlated various habits with different measures of success such as education, wealth, quality relationships, and an overall sense of happiness. Obviously, some people define success as making money. I joke that money doesn't make anyone happy, but it's a great way to be miserable! However, some might define success as a happy family life, finding true love, or winning a competition. Some see success as contributing to a worthy cause, completing a degree, or mastering a musical instrument. Others view success as healing from an emotional wound, beating cancer, or connecting with the divine. Some see success as being a leader or building a huge name for themselves, while others just want the satisfaction of quietly doing great work. Many define success as a combination of things. I respect the perception that there is no one-size-fits-all for success. Here, we define what success means to us individually, but in so doing, we will look at the foundational elements that apply to us all. The research and science is clear: however you define "success," daily habits, rituals, and routines are the key to either tragedy or triumph. Just as one bad habit ripples out until a life is destroyed, it is also true that one new good habit can ripple out and create something magnificent. Today's habits, rituals, and routines are tomorrow's destiny, and minor adjustments bring major rewards. Indeed, the four cornerstones of Me We Do Be lay the foundation of every great pursuit. They bring results that are positive, profound, and permanent. We have absolutely no control over most things, like the weather or the global economy. The only thing we really control is ourselves and the habits we choose. We dictate when we get up, what we eat, what we say and how we think. Focusing on a proven set of rich habits is simply the most direct way to building a rich life.

Those who are attaining their dreams, achieving the success they envision and are experiencing abundance on a daily basis have learned how to make the universe work for them. With the help of this book, you can take the Universal Laws and align them with your subconscious, so you can easily attain your long-held goals.

Everyone's life is a series of stages: childhood, primary school, secondary school, college for some, getting your first apartment, marriage, starting a family, buying your first family home, managing your growing family, balancing work and family while managing your career, empty nest stage and finally, the retirement state. Money mistakes you make in one stage can have a ripple effect, impacting one or more subsequent stages. Make too many money mistakes and you will find yourself in perpetual catch-up mode, the rest of your adult life. Those who make the right decisions at every stage, tee themselves up for financial success. In this book, I will show you exactly what you should be doing at every stage of your life. The foundation for sound financial decisions are smart money habits. When you have smart money habits, you are able to save and invest during each of the stages of your life, so that when your kids leave the nest or you enter your retirement stage, you are free from financial worries and not financially dependent on your children or loved ones. Financial success is a process. Understanding that process, and following it, virtually guarantees that you will become, at the very least, financially independent and, perhaps, even wealthy. In this book, I will share with you that process, embodied by specific smart money habits for each stage of your life. By following the lessons in this book, you will immediately catapult yourself into the top 5% of individuals - the 5% who never have to worry about having enough money.
